DESCRIPTION

The Corbusier LC4 chaise lounge, designed by Le Corbusier, Pierre Jeanneret, and Charlotte Perriand in 1928, is a seminal piece of modern furniture that embodies the principles of functionalism and aesthetics in design. Known for its sleek, ergonomic form and innovative use of materials, the LC4 was intended to provide optimal comfort and relaxation, reflecting the modernist movement's emphasis on simplicity and utility. The LC4 continues to be celebrated for its timeless design and remains a staple in contemporary interiors.

Our version of the LC4 features stainless steel tubing and a solid black frame underneath. The top frame can be adjusted to many positions and the cushion is supported with flexible nylon webbing. We offer our version in both leather and "pony" cowhide. If you would like to order with one of our leather choices, please use this link for Corbusier Style: Chaise Lounge in Pony Hide
