DESCRIPTION

The Corona Chair was first produced by the Danish designer Paul Volther in the early 1960's, and received instant praise. Originally made from solid oak, experimentation with various materials led Volther to re-release it a year later crafted from steel. This version remains a popular choice today, thanks to its seemingly suspended and unique look that's met by impeccable comfort.

The Paul Volther Corona Chair & Footstool are of high quality inspired by Volther's designs. The Corona Chair is frequently featured on the hit show "Mad Men" and received its first acclamation when the chair was launched in 1964. Since manufacturing started the Corona chair has been used in a wide variety of fashion features, film and music videos. Designed with a rare combination of natural expression and technical streamlining. Four upholstered shells making up the Corona provide maximum support of the body with obvious relations to both the spine and ribs of the human form.

Our version of the Corona chair features thick stainless steel flat bar that we offer with a choice of polished or brushed finish. The chair swivels 360 degrees and the bottom of the legs have plastic feet.
