DESCRIPTION

In 1956, Kjaerholm created a low table to compliment the PK22 lounge chair. Designated as the PK61, the square table is one of Kjaerholm's most elementary designs, governed by geometry and the structural properties of the materials. The glass top table displays a similarity to the glass table designed by Mies van der Rohe in 1930 for the Tugendhat House, which shows that Kjaerholm admired their furnishings even as he worked to surpass him.

Our PK61 table is constructed with four pieces of brushed stainless steel flat bar welded into the shape of an "L", joined with machine screws, then topped with 15mm marble or 19mm tempered glass. The legs extend above the horizontal bars so that they can hold the glass in place. The pinwheel structure of the base creates a square reinforces the vision effect of the square glass top.
